

NASA Brainstorms Moon Program after Tragedy

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — A week after the Apollo disaster, top government and industry engineers huddled behind closed doors yesterday, hoping to find ways to shorten safely the delay in America's efforts to land men on the moon.

"The meeting had an inspirational tone," said Paul Haney, public affairs officer for the space agency. "A very good session."

Haney said the men had heard an interim report from the board of inquiry probing last Friday's tragic spaceship fire that killed three American astronauts. However, he added that the board had not indicated that it had found the cause of the fire.

"They discussed flight schedules and hardware," Haney added.

added, "It gave them impetus to keep moving forward."

As they met, investigators at Cape Kennedy, Fla., appeared far from reaching a conclusion on what might have sparked the inferno inside the oxygen-filled Apollo 1 cabin last Friday. Sources indicated the probe might last at least another month.

In the meantime, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration clamped a lid of secrecy on the investigation and the Apollo program, in general. It has begun to explore various ways to juggle the flight schedule and how to make any modifications to the mission to prevent another such tragedy.

Haney said the "juggling of flights" had been discussed but no conclusions had been reached. He added that the engineers also had heard reports on where various spaceships and related equipment stood on the assembly lines.

Dr. Robert Gilruth, center director, and Joseph Shea, the center's Apollo program director, moderated the session, which lasted about two hours.

The U.S. manned moon program has been delayed at least six months by the launch pad fire that killed Air Force Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom and Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee.

Should a major redesign of the moonship be ordered, such as switching the atmosphere in the cabin from pure oxygen to a two-gas system to reduce the fire hazard, the delay could stretch to two years or more.

Only executive-level engineers from Apollo contractors, major subcontractors and the Manned Spacecraft Center attended the meeting. Entrance to the auditorium was by invitation only.

Asked to estimate how many were present, an official spokesman said: "I can't say anything about what is going on in there." Observers placed the attendance at about 300.

Two astronauts, Navy Capt. Alan B. Shepard Jr., head of the astronaut office, and Donald K. Slayton, director of the flight crew division, attended.

Indications were that the contractors were asked to come up with proposals on alternatives, including estimates on the length of time it would take to make certain modifications, plus the cost. They were told not to discuss the proceedings publicly.

NASA has several courses it could take to minimize the delay.

WEATHER

Windy and warmer. Chance of snow or rain by tonight. Southwest winds at 20 to 30 mph.

Top Of The Morning

WEATHER

The area will be experiencing a windy interval, but temperatures will not be quite so cold as yesterday. There is a chance of snow or rain by tonight. High for today will be around 35 while the low will be 20. Probability of precipitation is 30 per cent today and 50 per cent tonight. Winds will be southwesterly at 20 to 30 mph. Tomorrow promises colder weather with snow flurries. High yesterday was 33 and the low 13. Precipitation amounted to .13 inches. Sunrise will be at 7:31 and sunset will be 5:39 p.m.

WARREN COUNTY

Two candidates announced for the primary elections of county commissioners. Thomas Donnelly, assemblyman for Warren and Forest counties until the last election—when he was defeated by 1,000 votes—has decided to run for commissioner on the Democratic ticket. W. Robert (Bob) Walsh, editor of the Warren County Observer until it was sold last March, is running on the Republican ticket. Page One.

Warren Television has added three channels to provide a total of 11 stations to the area through its cables. Mayor Donald Conway threw the switch yesterday to turn on the system, which went into operation at 6:30 p.m. In addition, the cable offers about 20 FM stations, including some from New York City. Page B-1.

County commissioner Blain Mead returned from two special sessions in Harrisburg and said money dominated the debates. Specifically, the costs of paying for new and old welfare programs were in the spotlight. Page B-1.

THE NATION

Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers, widened the rift between his union and the parent AFL-CIO by resigning from the parent organization's executive board. Several other UAW officials followed suit, thus raising the question of whether a complete split is in the offing. Arguments with George Meany, AFL-CIO president, are partly to blame. Page One.

THE WORLD

In the war in Vietnam, another large offensive pushes into the Iron Triangle to clear a wide area around Saigon. In Operation Big Spring some 10,000 soldiers are involved in War Zone D, believed to be the headquarters of the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese battle forces. Page One.

NEWS OF CHINA

The complicated situation with China figured in the news on several fronts. In Moscow, several Soviet plainclothesmen entered the Chinese Embassy and removed a display of last week's violence in Red Square, beating several embassy officials in the process. In China itself, more opposition appeared from a dissident general, who may take over a nuclear stockpile, thus raising the possibility of atom bombs being used in the civil strife. Dragon wrestlers scored early wins last night but it wasn't enough as the Meadville matmen posted a 28-11 win over the Blue and White. Frank Cataldo, Dana and Doug Sorenson were the only Dragon winners. Gail Sudol scored a pin in the 88 pound exhibition match. Darrell Pusateri got Warren's only other two points on a draw in the 180-lb. match. Page A6.

Meadville's tall, talented basketball team posted an easy 81-54 win over the Dragons on the WAHS boards last night. Bulldog All-State Candidate Chris Buchanan fired in 30 points to lead his mates. High for the Dragons was Dan O'Neil with 12 points and Steve Tundel with 11. Page A6.

The Eisenhower matmen posted their sixth win in the Southern Tier wrestling conference last night as they tripped Falconer 24-19. The Knights built up their big lead through the 145-lb. match. During that time all the Falcons had to show was a draw at the 112 match. Page A6.

Youngsville was the only county basketball team to post a win last night. They downed Eisenhower 79-48. Sheffield dropped a 75-38 decision to Brockway in the Allegheny Mountain League. As a result of West Forest beating Spartansburg, there is a tie for first in the UAWL. East Forest and Sparta are each a game ahead of Youngsville. Page A6.

New Push Starts In War

(c) N. Y. Times News Service

SAIGON — Almost 10,000 American troops have begun combing through the hilly jungle about 15 miles east of the Iron Triangle, a military spokesman announced yesterday.

The operation, called Big Spring, is taking American units for the first time into an area of about 50 square miles between the Dongnai and Be Rivers in War Zone D, about 30 miles northeast of Saigon.

The region, which is lightly populated and has been heavily bombed in the past, is thought to contain the headquarters of the Viet Cong military region 1.

There were indications that Big Spring was the second of a series of major operations designed to clear the guerrillas from a wide belt around Saigon. The first of these was Operation Cedar Falls, in which 25,000 men took part last month in the Iron Triangle.

At the same time B-52 bombers hit War Zone C about 65 miles northwest of Saigon, in Tay Ninh Province only a few miles from the Cambodian border, with three strikes during the day.

These were the fourth, fifth, and sixth raids in the area since last Saturday and reports were current in Saigon that they were the prelude to a major operation in that sector as well.

Big Spring began on Wednesday. It is being carried out by the 173d Airborne Brigade and the First Brigade of the ninth Infantry Division. Initial contacts were light, with a reported enemy death toll of only 14. Forward units have encountered many mines and booby traps.

In other combat action, American and Korean Marine units claimed a total of 87 enemy dead in four separate actions along the coast from Danang to Quangnai. Eight guerrillas were reported killed by artillery 10 miles northwest of Hue as they tried to recover the bodies of three of their comrades who had been killed the previous day.

The Koreans, supported by the shelling of American ships, reported killing 37 enemy troops in two engagements.

SEIZE DISPLAY CASE

Soviets Strongarm Red China Embassy

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet police working two feet inside Red China's embassy grounds last night, tore down an anti-Soviet display and beat up Chinese diplomats who tried to intervene, a Chinese spokesman charged.

The Foreign Ministry called the charge of beating the diplomats "slander and provocation." But it did not deny that police forcibly removed the display after the Chinese rejected a demand to take it down.

The display was on a glassed-in billboard two feet inside the grounds. It consisted of pictures showing violence in Red Square on Jan. 25 when 69 Chinese students tried to lay a wreath on Stalin's grave.

Correspondents who went to the Chinese Embassy saw the snow pieces of glass and splintered ends of the stakes that held the billboard.

The display, apart from the embassy building, was located behind a waist-high fence. The fence was not damaged.

If Soviet police tore down the pictures, it appeared that they must have set foot on the territory of the embassy. That would aggravate the diplomatic seriousness of the incident.

Anti-Soviet demonstrations have been taking place outside the Soviet Embassy in Peking for more than a week. The Kremlin has protested, saying the embassy could not function normally, but no accusation has been made of entry by Chinese onto its grounds.

The Chinese spokesman a correspondent for the official New China News Agency, said about 100 Soviet police and plainclothesmen came up to the Chinese Embassy. He said they pulled down the picture display case, striking Chinese diplomats who intervened. Then they put the display case in a bus and drove away. He claimed some of the diplomats were seriously injured.

The display, labeled "Bloody Incident in Red Square," had been put up last Saturday when the Chinese Embassy held a news conference to parade Chinese students allegedly beaten by Soviet police in that incident. The Russians denied police did the beating and said the Chinese scuffled with Soviet citizens.

Earlier yesterday, the Foreign Ministry had called in Chih Tuan, embassy charge d'affaires, and demanded the pictures be removed. Chih refused, the Chinese spokesman said, "because the pictures show the truth."

The incident is expected to raise anti-Soviet feeling in chaotic China to a new high. And that will be high indeed, Tass, the Soviet news agency, said of the Chinese demonstrations in Peking: "Never before, in all the history of the Soviet state, has such an unbridled anti-Soviet campaign been conducted in any country, even in those most hostile to the Soviet Union."

Walter P. Reuther Quits AFL-CIO; Union Split Hinted

By PAUL HOFMAN

(c) N. Y. Times News Service

DETROIT—Walter P. Reuther, president of the 1.5 million-member United Auto Workers, resigned yesterday from the executive council and other organs of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations.

His withdrawal widened a rift within the merged labor federation almost—but not quite—to the breaking point. The rift began last year with disputes over Vietnam and domestic issues between Reuther and George Meany, president of AFL-CIO.

That an outright schism may be looming was also indicated by the resignation yesterday of three other leading officers of the auto workers union from posts held in the AFL-CIO and by an announcement that a United Auto Workers convention in April would review the union's relationship with the federation.

The convention, to be held in Detroit, April 20 to 22, is directed by the international executive board of the United Auto Workers "to take whatever action (with regard to the AFL-CIO) will best serve the interests of the UAW, its members and their families, the entire labor movement and the nation as a whole," a statement said yesterday.

Walsh Formally Announces

W. Robert Walsh, better known as Bob Walsh because of his 34 years of reporting, radio broadcasting, and editorial writing, today confirmed his intention to seek the Republican nomination for the office of Warren County Commissioner.

Though writing has been predominant in his life, (his "Observations" column now appears in the Erie Times News Sunday edition), Walsh has a background of varied experience and participation in many civic activities.

As a long-time member of the Erie County Board of Education, Walsh, who owned his father's and later owned and operated a radio station, was a school in IBM as a specialist in this field served in a supervisory capacity for a large IBM installation.

His printing, writing, and IBM background combined to provide a foundation for pioneering efforts in the use of computer printing for the publishing of newspapers. From this experimenting, five weeklies resulted, serving all corners of the county.

Walsh was a member of the Erie County Board of Education for 12 years.

Donnelly Running For Commissioner

Thomas J. Donnelly last night announced he will enter the race for the office of county commissioner.

Donnelly, who lives at 707 Madison ave., will run on the Democratic ticket.

Donnelly said he believes his recent two-year term as a member of the Pennsylvania Assembly would provide valuable experience if he is elected county commissioner.

After Donnelly was defeated as an incumbent in last November's election, a TMO editorial said:

"Whether Republican or Democrat, you have to admit that the representative of the past two years has tried to do the job in a way to best serve his district. He has been ready to meet his constituents, to hear their pleas, and do what he could for them, not always successfully, but not because he failed to try."

A native of Locust Gap, Northumberland County, Donnelly came to Warren in 1944. Here he engaged in two business enterprises: Donnelly Coal and Coke Co. and Times Square News Center. For eight years, he was revenue agent at Warren State Hospital.

Early in his career, Donnelly was ticket agent, then claim agent for the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad in Northumberland County. He was a banker for 22 years.

Donnelly served as a member of Northumberland County Selective Service Board No. 1.

He was appointed by Richard K. Mellon as chairman of a Selective Service System re-employment committee to find jobs for veterans. He served in that post without salary. He was the first treasurer of a Salvation Army district. Before the Pennsylvania Department of Public Assistance was organized, he was chairman of the relief fund.

Donnelly is a life member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. He belongs to Knights of Columbus, Holy Name Society, and Holy Redeemer Church.

Last night he said "I'll go all out to do a good job if I'm elected commissioner."

Sister of Released Prisoner 'Surprised'

BERLIN (AP)—Four Americans held in Communist East German jails were released last night and brought to West Berlin, an authoritative source reported.

The four: Mary Hellen Battle, 26, Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Moses Reese Herrin, 25, Akron, Ohio; Frederick Matthews, 24, Toledo City, Pa.; and William Lovett, 28, San Francisco.

All four were last reported in the East German prison at Bautzen.

The mass release was arranged through West Berlin State Department officials.

Miss Battle was arrested in East Berlin in November 1965. She was convicted of trying to help a young East German man escape to West Berlin and given a four-year sentence in April 1966.

Herrin and Matthews were given eight-year sentences each in 1965. They were tried on nine counts of trying to help refugees escape to the West.

Lovett was arrested in May 1965 on charges stemming from a Leipzig traffic incident in which several East Germans were injured. He had served about 21 months of his 27-month sentence.

MAO SHOWS UP PUBLICLY

Maoists Relying Heavily On Military Enforcement

By TILLMAN DURDEN
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
HONG KONG — Developments in Communist China yesterday pointed to an increased reliance on military force by partisans of Mao Tse-tung in their campaign to gain control of the country.

Indications of an expanding military role came as the chairman of the Chinese Communist Party emerged into public notice for the first time since November.

Mao was mentioned by Hsinhua, the Chinese Communist press agency, in a report which said he had received members of an Albanian mission headed by Defense Minister Bekir Balluku. The mission is ending a tour of Communist China.

Red Guards Held Following Fight

TOKYO (AP) —About 400 teen-age Red Guards were arrested after a fight among Mao Tse-tung forces in a suburb of Peking that left 50 persons injured, wall posters in the Chinese capital said yesterday.

A variety of other reports, official and unofficial, told of stiff resistance to Mao forces in other parts of Red China where the Maoists had claimed victory.

Hitherto the Red Guards, loosed by Mao in his power struggle with President Liu Shao-chi and his backers, have been inviolate. But by the wall poster accounts, some of them tramped on too many toes in Shihchiangshan, an industrial suburb 12 miles west of Peking.

Quoting the wall posters, the Peking correspondent of the Tokyo paper Asahi Shimbun said Premier Chou En-lai had to intervene and troops of the Peking garrison had to take over command of police headquarters.

The report said the fighting in Shihchiangshan broke out Monday when other Maoists tried to reason with a group that had tormented and taken over police headquarters in Peking Jan. 17. This group previously had been identified in Japanese reports as made up chiefly of Red Guards. To check the fighting in Shihchiangshan, about 1,000 police had to be called in, the wall posters said.

Mao himself was represented in other wall posters as saying "the struggle between the two lines is very sharp" in China and "the military cannot but intervene," the Tokyo paper Yomiuri reported. Mao was said to have made his remark at a party military committee meeting, but no date was given.

Radio Peking admitted serious trouble in Shansi Province of north China, claimed to have been taken over by Maoists Jan. 1. The radio said former provincial officials started "agitating, spread false rumors, set traps" and as a result there was disaffection.

Cleveland Cops End Picketing

CLEVELAND (AP)—About 30 off-duty policemen ended their picketing of city hall at noon yesterday after the first negotiations between the city and representatives of 11,000 municipal employees seeking pay raises.

Police and firemen representatives said after the meeting that the pay issue still is undecided. More bargaining is scheduled for next Tuesday.

Members of the Fraternal Order of Police decided Thursday night to picket after turning down a pay proposal from Mayor Ralph S. Locher that would have given safety forces a $640-a-year boost, bringing starting pay for police and firemen to $7,750.

new pledges of readiness for action by military units in many parts of the country built up a picture of growing military activity to secure Maoist domination of Communist China against opposition from entrenched Communist Party elements.

Hsinhua said 10,000 Maoists have claimed Shanghai is under their control. But opposition elements have continued to be active there, and the show of military force in support of the Maoists seemed designed to intimidate and discourage such elements.

In Canton, where reports reaching Hong Kong have indicated a growing antipathy to the Mao Tse-tung movement, Radio Peking reported 20 model units of the army have sent a message to Peking pledging loyalty to Mao. Radio Peking said the message also hailed the seizures of power by Maoists that have taken place in Heilungkiang, Kweichow, Shansi and other places as "in full accord with popular sentiment."

The Canton message said, "Bourgeois elements have taken power in the government and unless we take over from them, our state may change color."

Another Radio Peking message heard here said seizures of power by army-supported Maoists in Kweichow and Heilungkiang had inspired Maoist revolutionary rebels in other provinces to prepare a similar takeover with army support. The radio reported that undesignated artillery units in Yunnan had pledged to unite with other revolutionary forces "to score victory."

The view of many observers here is that the movement to establish Maoist control over all Communist China by ousting more conservative officials in the Chinese Communist hierarchy now finds it can only maintain its momentum through military action.

Parts of the military forces appear prepared to go along with the Maoists; other parts seem reluctant to do so. What may turn out to be a key activity for the military was indicated by a wall poster reported from Peking yesterday saying the Communist Party Central Committee had ordered the army to take control of grain storage depots throughout the country.

The poster warned that persons who gave unauthorized orders to remove grain from depots and other government-owned supplies would be severely punished. If the poster report is true it would indicate serious concern by Maoists that Communist China's grain reserves were in danger of being used to the advantage of oppositionists or simply taken by the peasantry.

of Warren County. These later were changed to semi-weeklies and in 1960, the first off-set daily in Pennsylvania was started in the Warren County Observer plant on Hickory street.

Today, he is internationally recognized as an authority on offset printing and new methods of economically publishing a quality paper. The result is a request for articles to be published in national magazines, one of which already has been used and another is being prepared.

He had the first successful radio news program in Warren County, continuing through the war years with the help of a volunteer staff, and lasting until a local station was provided in 1947. In addition to the 15-minute program, seven days a week, over WJTN Jamestown, he also presented many special programs, including a series of forums related to the young people and the part they could play in a community's life.

Walsh was a member of the Committee on Community Recreation 25 years ago which he states pioneered community efforts for the young people, including practical proof that skating areas can be provided by nightly watering. The Committee, he says, obtained the first absolute proof that a swimming pool is the most desired facility in Warren, and demonstrated that the young people will participate in and support community programs if they are given a part in the planning and supervision.

Walsh served on the Mental Health and Mental Retardation Study Committee in 1964. The study was made at the request of Gov. Scranton and the results served as a basis for the preparation and passage of the Mental Health and Mental Retardation Act of 1966, the effects of which soon will be apparent in our area.

tered Republican, and was one of the young leaders of that organization who helped rejuvenate it in the late 1930s when the GOP registration in Warren County had shrunk to a small edge over the opposition party. Walsh wrote much publicity for both local and state Republican organizations and also did much public relations work for such leaders as John Siggins who became a member of the Public Utilities Commission.

Walsh served a term as sealer of weights and measures. He initiated a plan that made available to the county commissioners a complete record of every measuring device in Warren County, its serial number and its condition, including a report of the attention given each device during his term.

Walsh has been a resident of Warren County for 50 years. He was graduated from Warren High School and attended Penn State University. He is a member of First Presbyterian Church in Warren. He served in the U.S. Army as staff sergeant during World War II.

At the present time he is initiating several new services for Warren. These include editorial, temporary part-time help, custom mailing, general addressing, a combination of new graphic arts services, copying, duplicating, and trouble-shooting of numerous kinds. He states qualified personnel in his employ will make it possible for him to give every minute required to fulfill his duties as county commissioner.

Thorn Discusses YMCA Renovation

General secretary Julius Thorn, of the YMCA, yesterday said, "With the newly modernized facility, our Warren YMCA can, relatively speaking, match the program offered at any YMCA in Pennsylvania, including the large cities, both in facilities and quality of program."

Offices have been moved into the Boys' Department area for the duration of construction.

Cracking of the oval running track and spectator's balcony in the gymnasium continues. It will provide additional space for the physical program. A small spectators' bleacher section is being built in the enlarged west end on the upper level.

"With the Warren YMCA program continuing from 8 a.m. until 10 p.m. every day except Sundays and holidays, it is one of the most intensively utilized institutions in the entire County," Thorn observes. He says many afternoons as many as 500 different boys and girls use the swimming pool and other facilities.

Thorn praised the YMCA Board of Directors for engaging the services of the staff of the Building and Furnishings Services of the National Council of the Y.M.C.A. This is because their staff specializes in the design of YMCA buildings throughout the world, and are familiar with the functional needs of such facilities.

"The National Council is related to a program that completes a new building or renovation of an old one every 13 days, somewhere in the world," Thorn said.

In the former reading room in the front part of the building, new administration offices are being created. Also a good sized board room and general conference room for smaller meetings.

A portion of the former lobby is now included in an adult lounge, reading and TV room on the Northwest corner, a game room more ample than before is also being provided. Also on the first floor is being installed new larger men's restroom and a powder room for the ladies.

On the second floor, the former hallway partition is being demolished and more space will be added to the main dining room, which also doubles for meetings. Classrooms will also benefit from this added space. A new, modern kitchen is being installed. Also modern rest rooms for both men and women.

Another project is the fixing up of the annex area, to provide for the overflow programs.

"With the present construction program, in addition to the earlier projects, including the new swimming pool, the YMCA will meet the needs of the coming decades," Thorn observes. There are at present approximately 2,700 members using the facilities of the Warren YMCA.

Breakfast Briefs

A New Jersey man was charged with a right-of-way violation after an accident at Second ave. and East st. at 1:30 p.m. yesterday. Borough police Sgt. D. E. Fitch, who investigated, cited Howard M. Kay, 69, of 3009 Atlantic ave., Longport, N.J. after his car pulled into the intersection and was struck in the right side by a car driven by Theodore W. Proukou, 19, of 224 Pennsylvania ave. W. A passenger in the Proukou car, Margaret Broughman, 46, of 304 Union st., suffered minor injuries. Damage to the Proukou car was estimated at $500; to the Kay car, $300.

An auto accident at Pennsylvania ave. and Hickory st., at 3:40 p.m. yesterday caused an estimated $125 damage to a car driven by Charles S. Hudson Jr., 47, of 100 Fladry Lane, and $50 damage to a car driven by James Porter, 30, of Star Route 62, Irvine. Police said the Porter car struck the Hudson car in the rear as the Hudson car was turning onto Hickory st.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reynolds of Decatur, Ga., are the adoptive parents of a baby boy. The father is a former Warren resident and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reynolds of Norristown, Pa. Mrs. Reynolds is the former Kay Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Davis of Youngsville.

Funeral services for Donald J. Harlan, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Harlan of RD 2, Kane, whose death occurred unexpectedly at his home on Monday, January 30, 1967, were held at the Hill-Kelly Funeral Home in Kane, Wednesday morning. Among those attending the services were Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Harlan of Warren.

Honors chorus members will be chosen by audition today at Clarion State College for the Mid-Western District Honors Chorus for 1967. The chorus, of 80 members, will rehearse at the college April 1, 15, and 29. The annual festival will culminate in a concert at 9 p.m. April 29 in the Clarion High School auditorium.

A two-car accident on Route 666 in Sheffield Township resulted in total damage of $800 yesterday afternoon. Russell Irwin, 20, of Star Route, Marienville was traveling east when his car was forced off the road by an unknown vehicle. Upon trying to recover a proper highway position, the car crossed the center of the highway and was struck by a pickup truck being operated by Ronald Davis, 35, of Star Route, Sigel. State Trooper William C. Dudnick of Warren substation estimated damage at $400 to each vehicle.

Warren Fire Department responded to a call at 4:50 a.m. yesterday from Lee's Service Station at the corner of Market st. and Pennsylvania. Gasoline in a container ignited but was distinguished by the time firemen arrived. No damage was reported.

Barbara Tees, 9, of 15 Prospect st., received a laceration of the knee yesterday and was treated in the emergency room of Warren General Hospital. The child reportedly fell at school. Five sutures were required to close the cut.

Ruby Had 8 Tumors In Brain

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Jack Ruby had eight brain tumors one as large as a thumbnail, doctors said yesterday, but they said it was highly unlikely they were there when Ruby killed Lee Harvey Oswald.

Ruby died Jan. 3, his body riddled with cancer but killed by a massive blood clot that spiraled from his right leg to his lungs, ruled the county medical examiner, Earl Rose.

Rose said at a news conference that Ruby's cancer originated in the lungs and spread from there to the brain and other places.

"The question is, 'Was this tumor in the brain there in 1963?'" Rose said, referring to when Ruby shot Oswald, the accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy.

"I can't give you an answer — cancer varies in its growth with the individual. But Ruby's X rays in 1964 did not show a tumor of the lung and thus it could not have spread into the brain," Rose said.

Rose also said doctors found no evidence of epilepsy or of other brain disorder.

Ruby's defense at his 1964 trial, in which he was convicted of shooting to death Oswald, the man the Warren Commission said assassinated President Kennedy, was that he suffered a brain disorder.

Ruby's Brother Wants Pistol Held by Court

DETROIT (AP)—The brother of Jack Ruby has taken new court action to obtain control over Ruby's belongings—particularly the pistol used to kill Lee Harvey Oswald.

"They're refusing to release my brother's personal things," Earl Ruby said.

His brother, who died of cancer last month in Dallas, shot Oswald in 1963 in view of a national television audience. Oswald was named by the Warren Commission as President John F. Kennedy's assassin.

Three of Four Quints Become Bottle Babies

NEW YORK (AP) — Three of the four surviving Brooklyn quintuplets became bottle babies yesterday and their doctor said their chances for survival now are considerably better.

The quint, one of whom was stillborn, were born to Mrs. Lilone Harris at Brooklyn Jewish Hospital Wednesday. She had been treated with a fertility drug after five childless years of marriage.

The babies' pediatrician said yesterday the three largest babies had been put on a special formula.

Although the quint were full-term, they are handled like premature babies because of their small size. The largest, the only boy, weighed 4 pounds and an ounce at birth.

The smallest baby girl was

Development of French Creek Key to Area

(Editor's note—This is the third and final in a series written by Jeffrey B. Knapp, a junior at St. Olaf College in Minnesota. The material was compiled for a term paper, which incidentally received an A- for the Warren history major.)

The French decided that the French Creek portage route would provide an easier access to the interior, and to that end, the construction of Fort Presque Isle, (present site, Erie, Pennsylvania) was begun in May of 1753. With the base fort completed, the French then fortified the opposite end of the portage route, close to French Creek itself. Under the direction of Chevalier Francois Le Mercier, an excellent engineer, Fort Le Boeuf, (present site, Waterford, Pennsylvania) was completed in July of the same year, and was the first post on the waters of the Ohio region.

During the year the French were to build three more forts at Venango, (present site, Franklin, Pennsylvania); at Chumuck, and at Soniboto. Political troubles with local Indians and sickness among the French deferred these plans until later in the Anglo-French conflict. Although the British were quite disturbed at these French advances, it remained for Governor Dinwiddie of Virginia, to initiate the first British program to eradicate the French from the Ohio Valley region.

Virginia possessed land claims throughout the entire region by means of an ambiguous land treaty, the boundaries of which were difficult to determine. Nevertheless, Dinwiddie made it clear that he wished no French intervention upon Virginia territory, wherever it might be. To win Indian allegiance to the British, and to formally persuade the French to abandon their schemes in the Ohio region, Dinwiddie sent George Washington to Fort Le Boeuf. It was only natural that the French politely refused Washington's demands and it was now up to the Virginia legislature and Governor Dinwiddie to follow the Crown's instructions: expel the French by force.

The British intended to establish a fort at the Forks of the Ohio, and Washington was dispatched with a small force to complete its construction. It was this expedition which engaged and defeated a French force at Great Meadows on May 28, 1754. The French commander, Sieur de Jumonville, was killed, and the British victory was so thorough that only one French soldier escaped.

Washington, realizing that a counterattack would be forthcoming, fortified his position immediately. The name of the fort was rather appropriate—Fort Necessity; and Washington described it as a "charm, ing field for an encounter. Despite this fact, the French captured Necessity on July fourth. This defeat prompted Governor Dinwiddie to call for British regulars, and in response, the Home Government ordered Major General Braddock to the Pennsylvania frontier.

The small battle at Great Meadows was the first purely Anglo-French encounter in the last struggle for European imperial rivalry in North America. The defeat of Braddock, however, brought forth a declaration of war from Great Britain.

By 1755, the French had completed Fort Duquesne, (present site, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania) and it was Braddock's intention to take this French stronghold. On July 9, 1755, near the mouth of Turtle Creek, Braddock suffered one of the worst defeats in the annals of military history. It would be easy indeed to lay the total blame for this defeat upon British military strategy; that is to say the formal British "square" did not win battles in the Pennsylvania forest. The American volunteers were as much at fault as the British regulars, however.

"At ye first of ye firing the Genl: who was at ye head of ye detachment came to ye front, & ye American Troops though without any orders run up immediately some behind trees & others into ye ranks & put ye whole in confusion . . . The greatest part of the Men who were behind trees were either killed or wounded by their own people, even one or two Officers were killed by their own Platoon".

Evidence also indicates that Braddock was taken totally by surprise:

"The General now thinking ye dangerous passes were over did not suffer ye advanced party to proceed any farther than ye distance of a few Yards from the main body."

Also: "There Never was an Army in the World in more spirits than we were, thinking of Reaching Fort de Cain the day following as we was then only five miles from it."

Though much more can be written about Braddock's tragic defeat, the main issue had been settled. Due to the serious situation existing in Western Pennsylvania, Great Britain was forced to declare war against France. This accomplished, England would finally emerge victorious in the contest for empire in North America—only to lose that honor to the American colonists in 1783.

It is with the conclusion of the Great War for Empire that one can best understand how the origin of the United States in 1776 was almost totally dependent upon the imperial interests, problems, and policies of European nations. If one considers the colonial history of the United States very carefully and thoughtfully, there is no denying the fact that without the Great War for Empire there would have been no war for American independence—at least not in 1776. Consider the victor, then try to imagine the consequences of a French victory: a different national language, a national religion, and the absence of a strong constitutional government would characterize the United States. Suffice to say that the United States might be somewhat different today as well as the state of world affairs. In fact, it is quite possible that there would be no United States!

The Great War for Empire saddled the British with a large debt; one which the colonists

EVERYONE'S CONFUSED

Experts on China Sharply Disagree

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the State Department's new advisory panel of specialists on China are in sharp disagreement over the Soviet role in Communist China's present turmoil.

A. Doak Barnett, acting director of the East Asian Institute, Columbia University, strongly maintains that the fundamental causes of the present struggle among the Chinese Red leaders are domestic. He sees Communist China tending to turn inward and become more preoccupied with internal problems and less adventurous in the future.

Robert A. Scalapino, chairman of the political science department of the University of California at Berkeley, disagrees and contends that foreign policy reverses and particularly the Sino-Soviet rupture have not been important but will become increasingly so as the crisis mounts.

A third specialist, economics Prof. Alexander Eckstein of the University of Michigan says that the primary factors in the struggle between Chairman Mao Tse-tung and the old guard party organization are internal, but that the Sino-Soviet dispute is closely intertwined with the domestic purge.

Their views were exchanged in a radio panel discussion broadcast by the Voice of America.

Barnett said it is impossible to foresee restoration of the type of Sino-Soviet relations that existed in the 1950s. But if a new type of leadership comes to Communist China, he could see small steps taken to reduce the present friction.

Scalapino agreed and said, "I think the Soviets want a change of power and are gambling on it."

Eckstein recalled the past between the Soviet Union and Nazi Germany at the outset of World War II and cautioned: "I don't think we can totally rule out the reconciliation between the Soviet Union and Communist China."

All three consider 1953, the year of Mao's "great leap forward," as the beginning of the crisis for him.

Eckstein said the food crisis that followed Mao's orders to establish communes profoundly shook the confidence of his followers.

The worsening of relations with the Soviet Union, he said, stemmed from the resulting internal policy clashes.

"Mao is deeply concerned China should not follow Moscow's way," Eckstein said, adding that Mao profoundly believes he can substitute revolutionary enthusiasm for technical competence.

Barnett said it is fairly clear that Mao is using the military and the paramilitary forces to surround the party organization. "That doesn't mean there isn't any division inside the army, but it is clear that the party apparatus is under attack."

Scalapino has emphasized belief that the Vietnam war has sharpened the differences between China and the Soviet Union.

Scalapino said a mission of the Japan Communist party to Peking in February 1966 sought a united front in support of North Vietnam and was able to obtain agreements with North Korea and North Vietnamese leaders. But, he said, the negotiations with top Chinese leaders reached no agreement because of the differences then existing at the top Chinese level on policy toward supporting North Vietnam militarily.

Boy Scout Week

The Boy Scouts of America celebrate the 57th anniversary of their organization February 7 to 13. Today there are over five and three-quarter million scouts in the United States alone. Scouting is dedicated to teaching boys how to do things for themselves and others.

Working to build friendship and understanding between the people of all countries, scout associations of 86 nations now coordinate their efforts through the Boy Scouts World Conference. Although each national association is independent in its organization and methods, the World Conference works to establish common ground in thinking and action among all its member associations. One of the major highlights of 1967 will be the Twelfth World Jamboree to be held at Farragut State Park in Idaho next August. The first to take place in the United States, it will bring together more than 15,000 scouts from 100 free nations. Although they will speak many dozens of different languages and come from widely varying religious, economic and cultural backgrounds, they will for a time share common experiences and pleasures and be united in the purpose of building world friendship.

In the work they are doing, the Boy Scouts deserve the respect and support of all of us. Building character in boys today shapes men of whom all the world can be proud tomorrow.

An End In Sight

WASHINGTON — One way or another, the end of the big-unit war in South Vietnam now seems to be rather clearly in sight.

As recently revealed in this space, the Hanoi leaders are using diplomatic intermediaries to feel out the President's willingness to "stop the bombing to get talks." If the President has not taken leave of his senses he will reply that he is perfectly ready to stop the bombing BUT ONLY if the Hanoi leaders will stop sending troops and supplies into South Vietnam.

If Hanoi is willing to offer this kind of quid pro quo it will mean that she wants genuine negotiations. If she is not willing it will mean that she merely wants a respite in the war in order to reinforce her badly battered southern units and then to start the war all over again.

But unless the President has succumbed to a political death wish, this is unlikely to be allowed to happen. Hence, events can take two alternative courses, as follows.

The first possibility is genuine negotiation on equal terms which could perhaps bring the whole war to an end. This is imaginable, although it seems more likely that Hanoi is merely seeking a respite.

The second possibility is that Hanoi will reject negotiations on equal terms, and our northern bombing will, therefore, continue.

Assume that the second and more likely possibility develops. In that event one can rather confidently forecast the fairly early end of the big-unit war in South Vietnam. The end may come within a matter of months. And when the big-unit war has been won, the worst of the war will be over.

The big-unit war (a current Pentagon phrase-of-art) is the war we are now fighting. It is primarily aimed at the enemy's "main forces" — his near-regular battalions, regiments and divisions which are quite different from his guerrilla and local forces. Essentially, it is a war of attrition. The attrition's cruelly severe effects on the enemy's big units had begun to be visible as long ago as last September.

Two factors, it need hardly be said, mainly determine the success or failure of a war of attrition. One is the enemy's rate of loss, and the other is the rate at which he can replace his losses. The northern bombing is so important because it so greatly affects the enemy's replacement rate.

Local recruitment in South Vietnam since 1964 has never come within miles of meeting the enemy's needs. In the first six months of last year, by enormous and costly efforts, Hanoi managed to bring the average rate of infiltration to the rather high figure of 7,000 northern regular soldiers a month. Even so, the loss-replacement balance was far from satisfactory.

In the last six months of 1966 the cumulative effects of our northern bombing then began to show in a dramatic manner. The infiltration rate was cut, according to the Pentagon's best estimates, by no less than 75 per cent. In other words, the monthly inflow of northern soldiers, to serve as replacements in the South, dropped to only about 1,700 men a month.

For the same period the enemy's heavy rate of loss remained approximately constant. And this happened although the Hanoi war planners seemingly adopted a new policy of ordering their big units to elude combat if possible.

In the period before combat began to be eluded, the grisly body-counts were running a bit above 5,000 a month, on a three-month moving average. Today, again on a three-month moving average, they are running at about 4,000 a month.

These figures, of course, represent the dead left on the field of battle in defiance of VC discipline. A conservative estimate of the enemy's total current rate of loss from all causes, including disease, is 12,000 a month, and it may be a good deal higher.

With only 1,700 men a month coming in from the North, the most extreme press-gang recruitment in the South can hardly bring the enemy's total of available replacements above 4,000 men a month. If the loss rate continues at 12,000 a month, and the replacement rate at only 4,000 a month, there can be no question about the final result. It will be the defeat of the enemy's big units. Yet that still leaves many unanswered questions.

Can Hanoi find ways to bring up the infiltration rate again? One must wait and see the January, February and March infiltration figures.

If high losses and low replacements knock the enemy's big units out of the war, how will this bitter and demoralizing defeat affect the VC's widespread guerrilla infrastructure? Again one must wait and see.

And may not the President start image-making once more, yielding a unilateral bombing halt after all and, thereby, risking every gain already made? Yet again one must wait and see.

"OH, STOP TRYING TO LOOK LIKE AN OWL, BARRY."

Great Tow-Away Controversy

(Copyright, 1967, by Bell-McClure Syndicate)

WASHINGTON—U.N. diplomats are not nearly as worried over the war in Vietnam as they are about the great tow-away controversy. Some have even threatened to break diplomatic relations and move the United Nations out of New York City, over the indignity of having their limousines hauled away for parking violations.

A confidential survey, conducted by pollster Lou Harris, forewarned of trouble weeks before Mayor John Lindsay, in a desperate effort to clear up New York City's paralyzed traffic, ordered the police to tow away illegally parked cars.

At first, Lindsay gave no quarter to diplomats, who are accustomed to immunity from parking regulations. But this action virtually caused an international incident, finally compelling him to modify his stand slightly.

Before the mayor's crackdown, Harris's interviewers asked 138 U.N. diplomats from Algeria to Zambia how they liked New York City. Though four out of five spoke favorably of the city, citing its cultural and cosmopolitan advantages, most also had some sour comments. Foremost was the parking problem.

In his confidential report, Harris spelled out the problems of the individual diplomat: "As a foreigner, he often has a language barrier. As a diplomat, he sometimes suffers prejudice against some of his legal privileges. As an African or Asian he often finds himself in a hostile society—not by choice, but because it is his job. . . ."

"When obtaining housing, a problem for any New Yorker at best, the diplomat is encumbered with his legal immunity and the fact that he is subject to transfer on short notice. Thus landlords are wary and ask for larger security deposits. Diplomats have difficulty getting the tax exemption that is lawfully theirs. They have parking problems. They face a vindictive daily newspaper."

"Many of these problems the diplomat simply does not have to face in other cities around the world. In most cities, including Washington, D.C., there is a diplomatic clause in leases which stipulates that upon proof of transfer, plus one month's rent, the lease becomes void."

RICHARD R. HARATINE

The 'Sweetheart' Treatment

DON'T LOOK NOW, BUT, . . . John K. Tabor, Pennsylvania's newly-elected Secretary of Internal Affairs, is going to get the same "sweetheart" treatment Governor Shafer got from Governor Scranton. The object is to establish the attractive Pittsburgh lawyer as the next Republican candidate for governor.

Tabor, in his new job, has ample opportunity to strike out on his own. Yet the detail of the glamour Tabor found as Secretary of Commerce.

As an elected official, Tabor will get a good share of the political goodies—those appearances in the bondbooks where there are plenty of hands to shake, plenty of names and faces to remember. Notwithstanding, Tabor's Democratic predecessor in the office virtually suffocated politically because Internal Affairs just doesn't generate that touch of urgency—that sense of immediacy—a politician needs to remain in the public eye, in a dynamic way.

But Industrial Development—the glamour project in Commerce—supplies dramatic copy. More and more that drama will make itself felt as Gov. Shafer "strives for excellence."

For this reason, Gov. Shafer has signed a tacit pact with John Tabor. Cliff Jones, the new Commerce Secretary, is politically attuned and fully understands, and approves, this tactic: The Governor will use the Tabor personality in Washington, D.C., and around Pennsylvania to win confidence for the Shafer program, with emphasis on the state's economic health.

Thus, when Gov. Shafer says, "We're the greatest," back will come the Tabor echo, "Yes, we are." The net by-product for Tabor is an opportunity to become—in all the Commonwealth—one of our commanding Republican figures, second only to his sponsor the Governor.

The diplomats want this clause in New York.

"In other cities, the diplomat simply shows his identification and he is exempt from taxes. In other cities, the diplomat is not threatened with a tow-away. If other cities can get along with diplomats, why not New York?"

Two out of three diplomats, Harris found, have had parking problems. Harris blames this upon "an intensive negative publicity campaign on the part of one particular newspaper in New York." This is a reference to the New York Daily News which has stirred up "real public ferment on this issue," causing "a major problem for diplomats."

Harris quoted an African diplomat as complaining: "Often before I arrive, someone else has taken my parking space. Frequently I am forced to double park because my space has been taken."

An European diplomat added: "Parking privileges are a reciprocal thing all over the world."

Concluded the confidential Harris report: "Arrogance on the part of diplomats certainly cannot be justified. Nor, on the other hand, can the situation tolerate continuing newspaper harassment and anything less than full sensitivity and understanding on the part of the police department and the city administration. . . ."

"It is inconceivable that the city would consider punitive solutions. It would break the protocol of international courtesy offered foreign diplomats. The repercussions would be world-wide and a great deal more damaging to United States diplomats than any other single group."

Harris pointed out: "Having the headquarters of the United Nations located in Manhattan benefits New York City immeasurably. It adds to the cosmopolitan nature of the city, is a major tourist attraction and, in hard cash, is a significant factor in the economic base of the city."

Ambassador Arthur Goldberg is quickly seeking a truce in the cold war between the United Nations and New York City.

MRS. HENRY KINGSLEY, DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—Jacqueline Kennedy and her small children will lose their Secret Service bodyguards on November 2, 1967. The law, as amended on September 15, 1965, authorizes protection for a President's widow and minor children for only four years after his death. The same amendment granted lifetime protection to former Presidents and their wives, but not to widows.

Supposedly to minimize political influence, a Superintendent's contractual term runs out in the middle of the governor's term. For this reason alone, the appointment is unattractive to many of the high-powered prospects.

Such appointees might have job protection, but they are smart people. They are quite aware that, during his first two years in office, the next governor could make their job difficult—or virtually ignore them—particularly now when authority in the department has been divided into the hands of at least three boards of education and a variety of commissioners and sub-commissioners.

The newcomer to this job joins a host of old deck hands who know where the posies are planted and who have read all the fine print: the second echelon in Public Instruction functions as a power elite which, over the years, has learned to deal with Legislators, educators, and the educators' lobbies—not with the front office.

To get along—just to keep house—the new man must be a good guy and not upset anybody's kingdom. That can last about two years, until a new governor comes along, with new ladies and new approaches.

Dr. Rackley wants to get back to Penn State, for understandable career reasons. Gov. Shafer would be wise to move smartly in appointing a successor. The more time the new superintendent has to share in the early influence that attaches to a new governor, the more effective he will be.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Two Leading Authorities

In its substance the consular convention with the Soviet Union, which is now up for ratification by the Senate, is of relatively minor practical significance. All it would do is to make trade and tourist travel between the two countries safer and more convenient.

It has no real relation to the question of espionage. But because of the opposition to it, including that of the director of the FBI, the ratification of this convention has been blown up into a test of whether or not the United States can proceed to work out better relations with the Soviet Union.

The contest over ratification turns on a question of great importance to the whole conduct of U.S. foreign policy. It is whether international communism is still essentially the same conspiracy which it was understood to be 20 years ago after World War II.

The hard opponents of the consular convention believe that the Soviet Union today is no different than it was in the time of Lenin or Stalin. The hard proponents of the escalated war in Vietnam believe that the real adversary is the international communism of the postwar era.

This week the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has heard testimony on these questions from two distinguished diplomats and scholars. The first was George Kennan, generally regarded as the leading American authority on Soviet communism. The second witness was Edwin Reischauer, until recently our ambassador to Japan, who has known the Far East all his life.

Kennan told the Senate committee that the 20-year-old picture of communism was no longer a true picture. Reischauer told the committee that the current official conception of our relations with Asia is mistaken, both as to the power and the threat of China and as to the power and influence of the United States.

If Kennan and Reischauer are right, a successful foreign policy cannot be formed in this country until there has been a re-education of our people, starting with our officials.

"Many of us would be helped in our thinking about the problems of Soviet-American relations," said Kennan, "if we could free ourselves from the abnormal sensitivities and reflexes to which the extreme tensions of earlier decades have led and teach ourselves to think about Russia as simply another great world power with its own interests and concerns, often necessarily in conflict with our own, but not tragically so—a power different in many respects, but perhaps no longer in essential ones, from what Russia would have been had there been no Communist Revolution in that country 50 years ago."

Reischauer's testimony was deeply at variance with the current official conception of our role in Asia. He told the committee that "We should seek to minimize our military involvement and military commitments in Asia." In saying this he was adhering to the classic American doctrine of no land war on the Asian continent, which was breached by President Kennedy and completely abandoned by President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

As against John Foster Dulles and Secretary Rusk, Reischauer said, "We should not try to induce most Asian countries to align themselves formally with us."

"We should not sponsor political, social or economic change in Asian countries," he said, "though we should be responsive to requests from them for aid. . . . We run serious and unwarranted dangers when we take the initiative in sponsoring important internal changes in Asian lands or when our influence becomes so preponderant that we assume responsibility for the existence or nature of a regime."

These are weighty utterances which cannot easily be dismissed. They should not be ignored, and every effort must be made to acquaint our people with them. For it would be impossible to name any two living Americans who can speak with greater or even with comparable authority about the problems confronting us with the Soviet Union and with the countries of Asia.

Tax Humor

One alert taxpayer, exploring all possibilities, called IRS and asked: "Can I take deductions on my clothes as a deduction? I had an operation and lost a lot of weight." (He can't.)

Letter to the Editor

February 2, 1967

Letter to the Editor:

Today I had the enlightening experience of finding out the function of the Penna. Employment Service. Apparently it's their job to delay unemployment checks until the claimant starves to death or goes on relief. I signed for benefits Jan. 16 after being laid off the 13th, signed again the 20th and was told to report on Feb. 2 to sign again for a check which would arrive 7 to 9 days later, and was informed that a maximum of 21 days must pass before any inquiry as to the whereabouts of the first check. There must be a better way!

A clipping that came to me through the mail from Chuck Davis finally solved a dilemma I have been struggling with for a long time. The question has been whether or not to get into matter of the Kinzua Dam being drained after it had been heavily stocked with at least two species of fish and these fish were showing signs of becoming an established population.

Not that I didn't want to discuss the matter. I did. But to establish an area of justification required facts. Facts that I couldn't seem to pin down in the response I could get from representatives of the two agencies involved.

That Lucian Warren saw fit to take the bull by the horns in his recent Buffalo Courier-Express article, and that Chuck saw fit to send it along, is quite pleasing to me and should be of interest to local fishermen.

A portion of the Warren article goes this way:

WASHINGTON— Things are going along swimmingly at the Kinzua Dam Reservoir— almost too swimmingly it would seem.

The Interior Department's Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife admits candidly that a sizeable number of the 750,000 large-mouth finerging bass it stocked in the upper Allegheny River Reservoir last June has swum downstream below the dam, contrary to the bureau's original intentions.

The straying fish are a result of an apparent slipup in the coordination of activities of the Army Corps of Engineering, in the process of completing construction of the $106-million Kinzua Reservoir complex, and the Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife, which wants to make the big new man-made lake on the New York-Pennsylvania border a "sportsmen's paradise.

The engineers had closed the gates to the dam to build up last summer's recreational pool to about 1,240 feet above sea level. This was sufficient for the bureau's fish-stocking project. Alas, the recreational pool was only a temporary thing. In a few weeks the engineers opened the dam's gates, reducing the elevation of the pool to about the level of the old riverbed, as a part of a necessary project to clean out logs and other debris that had collected against the dam.

The logs were cleaned out of the pool and so were some of the fish.

The bureau is putting the best possible face on the occurrence by suggesting that some unwelcome carp, which had multiplied rapidly with the rising reservoir pool, also have migrated downstream.

The bureau hopes to restock the reservoir with some more game fish this summer and is meditating on importing some large bass from a Texas fish hatchery or some smaller bass from Ohio.

The bureau feels that the large bass would act as a healthy predator on the remaining carp, but is not sure it can raise the necessary $7,000 to conduct the operation. The Army engineers say it wants to co-operate but has no funds earmarked for such an operation.

Aside from this intergovernmental mixup, work on the reservoir complex appears to be going nicely.

But, after all, the draining of the dam is now a thing of the past and the fish that did find their way downstream will undoubtedly furnish some good sport for rodbenders. It isn't as though we had lost them completely.

Then too, no one is quite sure just how many did find their way through the gates at the dam. Late last season I had another letter from Chuck Davis in which he reported that while fishing for chubs (bait for Chautauqua muskies) in Willow and Sugar runs he and his son had caught many of the largemouth that had worked their way up out of the dam. There is no doubt that many of the stocked fish did move into the tributaries where they probably stayed while the dam was being lowered.

Further than this, plans are already under way for stocking next year. As Warren states, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will place either full-grown or fry largemouth bass in the dam early this year.

Last year the stocking wasn't made until June and by that time the hatch of young carp had grown so large that the small bass couldn't control them. This year the bass will either be stocked earlier or more mature bass will be put in the dam.

Present word is that agreement has been reached also on stocking northern pike in the dam as a more predatory species that will thin the ranks of the mushrooming carp.

Some fishermen have been concerned that no announcement has been made that walleyes will be stocked at Kinzua. When I talked with Joe Boccardy not too long ago, Joe told me that it was his impression the walleye population already in the dam would provide the necessary reproduction to keep the species abreast with other species as fishing at the dam developed.

Tom Weiskopf Takes Lead in Desert Golf

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer
PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The big guns of the tournament began to speak loud and clear yesterday, but when the firing was over, another non-winner, long-hitting Tom Weiskopf, was atop the field in the third round of the $110,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

The 24-year-old former Ohio State golf star, something of a protege of another ex-Buckeye, Jack Nicklaus, shot a four-under-par 68 for a 54-hole total of 210, six strokes under par for the distance.

The day was sunny and the wind relatively calm as play continued on the four par 36-36-72 courses.

Nicklaus shot a 67, and Billy Casper a 68 to tie in the 212 group. Arnold Palmer's 68 gave him 213.

Chi Chi Rodriguez, the wiry little Puerto Rican, had a 70 for 211, and Doug Sanders, the 1966 Hope winner, carded a 69 for 212.

Weiskopf, who was a freshman when Nicklaus was a senior at Ohio State in 1960 and who turned pro in 1964, said he was helped considerably by a lesson in putting from — no surprise — Nicklaus in a practice round here last Tuesday.

He also changed back to an old blade putter, which earned him a tie in the Greensboro Open last year with Sanders. He lost to Sanders in a playoff.

Palmer, who missed three of the first four greens, started with bogies on the first two holes when he was in a trap on each. He got his game back together, however, for a round of 33-35-68, playing the back nine first.

Casper, Palmer, Nicklaus and Sanders were among those playing the easy Indian Wells course, Casper made the trip in 35-33-68, Nicklaus in 34-33-67, and Sanders in 33-36-69.

The hard-luck man of the day was Jacky Cupit. He had two holes which consumed eight strokes each. They came on the first and 16th holes at Eldorado, the first a par 5, the other a par 3. Subtracting the difference of those unhappy strokes, Cupit could have had a 70 instead of 78 and a tie for the lead at 210.

Junior High Tournament At WAHS

The second annual Junior High Wrestling Tournament is slated to start at 1:30 today with the preliminary round. The finals in nine weight classes will begin tonight at 7 o'clock.

The tourney will be held in the Warren Area High School gymnasium.

Fifty-nine junior high grapplers will compete, including nine from Youngsville JHS. The admission charge for each session will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students.

Warren varsity wrestlers Doug and Dana Sorensen, Ray Lowe and Craig White will referee the afternoon matches. Referees for the finals will be Dragon head coach Mike Weber and Hal Miller.

First round pairings in all nine weight classes were listed in Friday morning's edition.

Top Three Unchanged In Small College Roll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Indiana State is the latest threat to the Big Three of Southern Illinois, Kentucky Wesleyan and Cheyney State, who have dominated The Associated Press small college basketball rankings since the start of the new year.

The Hoosiers scored impressive victories over Eastern Illinois and Ball State last week for a 14-2 record that moved them from seventh to fifth place.

Akron, scoring over Mt. Union and Hiram, climbed another into fourth place as Tennessee State tumbled from fourth to seventh. Tennessee State fell three notches despite victories over Youngstown and Central State.

Southern Illinois, with a 13-2 overall record, received 13 of 44 first place votes and a total of 139 points from a panel of sports writers and broadcasters. The leaders last week scored over Abilene Christian and Steubenville.

Kentucky Wesleyan received the other top vote on a victory over Delta State. Cheyney State beat Maryland State.

Grambling held sixth place and San Diego State was stationary at eighth. Trinity, Tex., leaped from ninth to 10th, replacing Pan American, and two new teams moved into the tie for the No. 10 position — Lincoln, Mo., and Southern University. Lincoln returned to the Top Ten after an absence of one week.

The Top Ten, with first place votes in parentheses, season records through games of Sat. Jan. 26 and total points on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

1. S. Illinois (13) 13-2 139
2. Ky. Wesleyan (1) 11-1 121
3. Cheyney State 15-0 94
4. Akron 13-2 61
5. Indiana State 14-2 53
6. Grambling 14-3 52
7. Tennessee State 15-4 49
8. San Diego State 15-2 42
9. Trinity Tex. 11-2 24
10. Tie, Lincoln Mo. 17-2 15
- Southern U. 13-3 15

Others receiving votes, listed alphabetically: Asheland (O.), Arkansas AM&N, Arkansas State, Assumption, Central Michigan, Colorado State College, Georgetown (Ky.), Hillsdale, Howard Payne, Kennedy (Tex.), Midwestern, Nevada Southern, North Dakota, Pan American, St. Mary's (Tex.), Salem (Mass.), Southern Colorado State, Southwestern, Southwest Missouri State, Valparaiso, Washburn, Westminster (Pa.), Winston Salem.

ILLUSTRATE NEW REFEREE'S POSITION

Two different pairs of grapplers illustrate the new, olympic-style, referee's position that will be used by all Pennsylvania high school wrestling teams next season. At left, Jimmy Miller (standing) and Pete Salerno (on mat) show the starting position. The top man stands directly behind the bottom man, with his hand resting on the small of his back. At right, when the referee gives the signal to commence wrestling, Tom Doherty is seen moving to the side to get into position to maintain control. The bottom man, Larry Champion, is starting a switch to the opposite side in an effort to escape. The new position will be used in all matches at today's Junior High Tournament at WAHS. Mays Cited As Player of Century

★ Giant Slugger Destined to Break HR Mark

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Willie Mays' manager says the San Francisco Giants star outfielder will some day break Babe Ruth's home run record.

In an interview yesterday from his Salt Lake City home, Herman Franks told Bob Hunter, Herald-Examiner baseball writer:

"Mays is good for as long as he wants to go. He'll hang around long enough to top Ruth's record. I just talked to Willie Thursday. He's always in great shape. He watches his weight to the very ounce."

Franks said Mays, 35, could play another five years. Ruth, the late left-handed hitter of the New York Yankees, had a lifetime record of 714 homers.

Mays is 172 behind that total, with 542 lifetime after hitting 37 last season. If he averaged 37 for the next five years, he'd add 185 to his total, making it 727 or 13 more than the Ruth aggregate which many baseball men figured was unbreakable.

Mays now is baseball's No. 1 right-handed hitter, having topped Jimmy Fox's 534 total and he also leads the National League, having passed Mel Ott's 511 mark.

Michigan Coach Suspends Three

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Coach Dave Strack suspended three University of Michigan varsity basketball players yesterday for what he said were disciplinary reasons.

The players, suspended for skipping practice sessions, are starting guard Jim Pitts, starting forward Bob Sullivan and substitute center Scott Montross.

Strack said the suspension remains in effect until at least next week and they will miss the game against Purdue at Ann Arbor Saturday.

Vet, 2 Rookies Ink Tribe Pact

CLEVELAND (AP) — The signing of one veteran and two rookies to contracts was announced yesterday by the Cleveland Indians, bringing to 25 the number of players signed for the 1967 season.

The latest signers were pitcher John O'Donoghue, outfielder Richie Scheinblum and catcher Rick Underwood.

O'Donoghue, a 27-year-old left-hander, was obtained from Kansas City last year in exchange for Ralph Terry. He had a 6-3 record and a 3.83 earned run average with the Indians.

WARREN, PA., SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1967

Youth Banned from All Driving, Sentence Four

A 19-year-old Warren man, sentenced to six months in the county jail yesterday by Judge Alexander C. Flick Jr., was told that under no circumstances was the defendant to operate any kind of a motor vehicle, anywhere at any time.

Gary Laufenberger, of 322 E. Fifth ave., charged with driving during suspension and with a previous record of 11 traffic violations and two other summary offenses, will be paroled after spending ten days in jail, but unless he abides by the conditions of his parole—that of not driving, the jurist said he would be brought back to serve the balance of the jail sentence as well as an additional sentence.

Laufenberger was arrested October 10, 1966 by borough police officer Edward E. Peterson, following a high speed chase the day before as Laufenberger attempted to outrun the police car on a motorcycle. Officer Peterson testified he gave chase on five borough streets at 12:30 p.m. Oct. 9, before losing the defendant when the latter rode out of the borough.

One other condition of Laufenberger's parole is that he get a job and become self-supporting.

An unusual procedure was permitted in the case of the Commonwealth vs. Ronald Attieberger, of RD 2, Oil City, also charged with driving during suspension. District Attorney Samuel F. Bonavita, "in the interests of justice," asked that testimony be taken before Attieberger enters a plea.

Trooper Max J. Bizzak of the Warren substation testified that on Sept. 6, 1966, Attieberger was apprehended operating a motor cycle by Trooper John D. Barnes. The defendant did not have an operator's license or vehicle registration card with him and was told to bring same to the barracks. Attieberger failed to produce the documents and a check with the Bureau of Motor Vehicles revealed he was under suspension.

The Venango County youth testified that he entered the U.S. Marine Corps August 12, 1964 and was honorably discharged July 12, 1966. He told the court neither he nor his family had received the notice of suspension, which was to run one year from Sept. 7, 1965.

The driving during suspension charge was dropped and Attieberger was charged with operating a motor vehicle without an operator's card. He was ordered to pay the statutory $25 fine and costs for this summary offense.

John W. Hendricks, 219 Mabel st., Reynoldsville, Pa., charged with leaving the scene of an accident, on Route 6, when his car crossed the center of the highway and struck a westbound car driven by Margaret P. Wilson, RD 2, Warren, and left the scene, was ordered to pay a $100 fine and costs. Hendricks stated restitution had been made for damages in the accident.

Robert G. Darts, 108 N. Carver st., charged with turning off car lights to avoid identification and arrested by Sugar Grove Police Chief Claude Perrigo, when a road block was set up following a high speed chase, was ordered to pay costs and a $100 fine. Perrigo had been alerted to watch for the Darts car by Busti, N.Y. police, who had followed the car to the state line from Busti.

Barry Neil Simon, 21, RD 1, Clarendon, charged with public indecency and malicious use of the telephone, had imposition of sentence suspended, placed on one year probation and ordered to pay costs and to continue psychiatric treatment which the defendant had already voluntarily started.

As court sessions ended this week, the district attorney stated that a total of 25 cases had been processed. Of this number, 14 were non-support. Bonavita noted that although unemployment in the county is at an all-time low with more people working, non-support cases continue to increase.

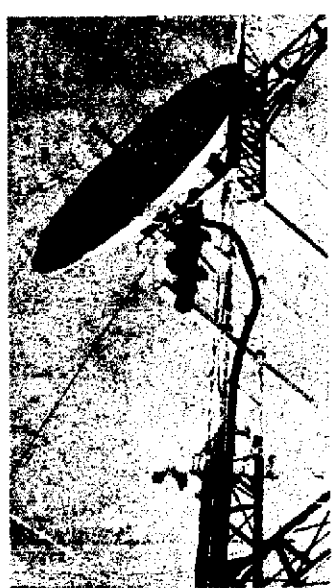

MAYOR LAUNCHES NEW SYSTEM

Warren TV Expands, Offer New Channels

When Mayor Donald E. Conaway threw the switch last evening at the Warren Television antenna and transmitter on East Fifth Avenue extension, turning the new microwave TV and FM radio system into the Warren Television cables, he inaugurated programming of 11 different TV channels, plus—a very big plus—about 20 different FM radio stations. Nine of the FM stations carry stereo broadcasts.

This is all accomplished through the miracle of today's space-age electronic technology. Microwave transmission is done through relay systems utilizing receiving and transmitting instruments that look for all the world like a big dish, or mixing bowl. From terminal microwave receivers at the Warren Television transmission plant, the signals are reconverted into individual channels and fed through the cable system into subscribers' homes.

NOT A UFO

Three Buffalo TV channels, two from Erie, one from Altoona and the WPSX educational television from Pennsylvania State University, are caught by Warren Television's high antenna on the hill above East Fifth Avenue extension, and fed directly into the cable system.

The new channels, received through the microwave system, include from New York City, Channel 5—WOR; Channel 9—WNET; and Channel 11, WPIX Educational TV. These are picked up at a microwave receiving relay point just outside New York City. From there they are transmitted through a series of about eight relay hops, none more than 40 miles apart. The New York Microwave Company has its headquarters in Corning, N.Y. The ultra-high-frequency microwave signals are picked up in Elmira, Corning, Wellsville, Olean, Bradford, and Jamestown.

Gail Parks, general manager of Warren Television, says microwave transmission requires extremely precise adjustment. He reports the new expanded service to Warren Television subscribers, gives an incredibly wide variety of both TV and FM programs around the clock.

"Movies on Channel 11, for example," Parks says, "run up until about 7 a.m." Also included on the many new channels are major sports events—such as the New York Mets and Yankee baseball games; New York Giants football; as well as hockey, boxing, wrestling, both college and professional basketball, golf, swimming and other sports.

Shafer to Protest Road Fund Cutback

A delegation of more than 80 Pennsylvanians, led by Governor Shafer, will be in Washington Tuesday to protest a recent cutback of federal aid funds for highway development. Shafer and his new highways chief, Robert G. Bartlett, will be the key spokesmen for the Pennsylvania Highway Information Association delegates in their breakfast session with Pennsylvania's Congressmen and other federal officials.

Financing Big Problem New Welfare Programs

County Commissioner Blain M. Mead, who has returned from two special sessions held in Harrisburg Wednesday and Thursday, reports that county-state problems were the subject of Wednesday's conference while the Welfare Committee of the County Commissioners Association and the Dept. of Public Welfare, dealt with legislative suggestions on Thursday.

Money, Mead said, dominated Wednesday discussions as the issue of paying the costs of new and expanded welfare programs continually popped up.

At one point, the commissioner said, Secretary of Public Welfare Max Roseum gave a blanket answer to a question raised by several county officials on how they can pay their share of welfare programs.

First, Roseum said, there is a hope for a return of a portion of federal taxes to the states as proposed by Governor Shafer and other Republicans, perhaps within two years and particularly if the Vietnam war should end or ease.

Second, Roseum suggested more efficiency in government operations, including county government.

Finally, the secretary, gave what he called "not a pleasant answer" to commissioners who must face the electorate. Pennsylvania counties "haven't taxed real estate as much as possible," he said, adding that real estate taxes in the state are not as high as those in neighboring New York and New Jersey.

Commissioner Mead said the welfare committee on Thursday then discussed seven legislative suggestions. Among these was an authorization for the Dept. of Public Welfare to build regional juvenile detention centers for county use. Mead pointed ed out that this has long been a possibility mentioned by Judge Alexander C. Flick Jr.

The committee also eyed legislation to extend the child welfare grant program to include juvenile probation grants; amending the support law to limit responsibility to "spouses for each other and parents for minor children."

Discussed too was a grant program for the aging similar to that for child care. Mead noted that some counties have been able to effectively place private or public nursing home guests in foster homes—a program that decreases costs.

A single retirement system for state and county employees that would co-relate programs was recommended as well as amendments to the County Institution District Act and County Code—this in regard to possible civil service.

The committee talked of establishing County Welfare Departments to administer existing programs and the new mental health and mental retardation program. Mead said there was some discussion about creating two separate departments for the latter—one for mental health, the other to handle mental retardation problems.

Commissioner Mead said he had occasion to talk with Joseph Williamson, former administrator at Warren General Hospital, now serving in Harrisburg as Director of Hospitals and Special Services.

Another Rash Camp Break-ins

TITUSVILLE — State Police at Tionesta have worked this week to track down leads following a series of camp break-ins all over the area.

Camp robberies have been reported from Whig Hill, Crystal Springs, Marienville, Nebraska Road, Camp DuRoi, Cooksburg and other areas of Forest County, as well as numerous ones in adjacent counties.

In all, over 30 camp entries have been reported. It is unknown how many more might have been broken into and as yet not discovered.

Most of the robberies have been reported in the past two weeks. State police believe the break-ins are not the work of juveniles, but of professional burglars.

Plan Tribute To Late Chief

Chief Doug Ward of the North Warren Volunteer Fire Department has announced that the organization will pay tribute to the late Leon H. Mintzer, Chief of the Warren Borough Fire Dept., by sounding a single alarm this afternoon, following the 1:30 p.m. funeral service, as the procession passes through North Warren en route to Pine Grove Cemetery.

Town Crier

... By Les Rickey

I can picture, at some not-too-distant day, the scene which could take place on the streets of our nation.

A ten-year-old boy is walking along with a little gadget put up to his ear. He found this thing in the attic among an assortment of forgotten items left by his older brother. This particular gadget is roughly the shape of a cheese box, with a long antenna sticking right straight out of the middle. It's a 27-megacycle walkie talkie, one of the few not captured in the Great Cleanup drive staged by the Federal Communications Commission.

Out from behind this tree jumps an FCC agent, with his handcuffs in one hand and his writ of summons in the other, searing back out of the kit.

"All right, boy," the FCC man says around his cigarette, "drop it." The kid does, shaking in his pants at the same time. "Don't you know these things are illegal?" the fed snarls. "They were outlawed in 1958."

So the FCC agent picks up the contraband walkie talkie and puts the handcuffs on the youthful offender, being careful to mark down his identification number and digital background on an IBM card. Ten years old, and already the boy has a federal record. If he's lucky, he'll get off with a stern warning and six months in a retraining school.

Sound far-fetched? Well, just stick around for awhile. It's bound to get better as years go by.

Y GYM RUNNING TRACK WRECKED

Renovation at YMCA eliminates old running track and balcony in gymnasium, constructed when building was erected in 1913. With the oval track out, the excuse that it interferes with corner basketball shots is gone. A small bleacher section is being built on the enlarged west end of the gym on the upper level. Police Report

Borough police report 35 accidents during the month of January, 10 less than occurred in January last year. Property damage was listed at $14,038. Eight persons suffered injuries, five of them operators of motor vehicles. No accidents were recorded involving bikes or sleds. There were 19 hit and run incidents. There were no fatal accidents last month.

Meter Receipts

Parking meter collections this week netted $478.05 from on-street facilities and $169.46 from municipal parking lots.

Wrong Park Maybe?

With a little prodding from Corry city police Wednesday night, an Erie man decided his Corry date had stood him up. When police received a call that a man was walking back and forth near Mead Park, officers went to look into the situation. They found the Erie man who said he was there to keep a date with a girl. Officers said residents in the vicinity had seen him and became alarmed. It was suggested he return to Erie. Since the girl was already an hour and a half late, the man agreed.

New Law Effective

Warren County's Chief Clerk William W. Allen reminds Act 58 governing the election of borough assessors is now effective. In the past each ward elected its own assessor. Under the new law, only one assessor for the borough will be elected at large, February 14 is the first legal day to secure signatures on petitions and March 7 the last day to file same in the court house.

THE AVANT-GARDE ART SHOW, sponsored by the Warren Art League had a sort of preview for members on Thursday night. It was opened to the public last evening and will continue through today and tomorrow — Hours at the Art League Center today are 7:30 to 9:30 p. m., and tomorrow from 1:30 to 4:30 p. m. I haven't seen it myself, but from good authority (i. e., one who has), I hear that it is a most interesting show, and, like all such things, there will be works that you like, and some you don't. But, it is worth your time to broaden your knowledge of art to get and view for yourself and form your own opinion of this style which represents the latest trends in art. For instance, Avant-Garde itself means "before the masses", and among its forms and media are included Pop-Art, and Op-Art. The show has been arranged through the Ferdinand Rotten Galleries of Baltimore, Md. Among some thirty prints on exhibit are works of Lichtenstein, Anuszkiewicz, Baskin, Man Ray, Schwitters, Sam Francis, Warrington Colescott and Wallace Ting — There is no admission charge for the show. If you're interested, yes, pictures are for sale. Mr. John Huey, art instructor at WAHS, wanting his students to expand their horizons in the field of art, has arranged tours for his classes.

THE ENGAGEMENT OF MARGORIE LEE BEER to Thomas Louis Tomassoni has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Beer of Star Route, Kane. The bridegroom-to-be is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Tomassoni of 3 S. South street, Warren. Miss Beer, a 1966 graduate of Kane High School, is employed at Sunray Products, Warren. Her fiancé, a 1965 graduate of Warren Area High School, has joined his father's landscaping business, following his discharge from the United States Coast Guard. The couple plans an August wedding.

MINIATURES: Kinzua Campers tureen dinner meeting at Warren Grange Hall on the South Side has been announced for 1 p. m. Sunday, February 19th. Bernard Wingert will be the speaker. Come prepared for making National Convention reservations at this time. $ registration, and $7 ground fees for the week at Prince Galtzin.

Warren County Chapter Gold Star Mothers meeting Monday at the home of Mrs. Ella Mauk, 13 Hammond street at 7:30 p. m. Bring cookies (1/2 dozen) and $1 gift for exchange. Warren General Hospital Alumni meeting Monday at 8 p. m. in Warren Dairy on Lookout street.

And, last but not least, the Scandia Volunteer Fire Department Ladies Auxiliary meeting on Monday at 7:30 p. m. at C. B. Rangers Hall.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing about the most useless bit of advice any counselor ever handed out. Please, Ann, put an end to the phony idea that the way to get along with a fellow is to learn about his special interests and participate with him. I fell for this applesauce and it just about wrecked me. I started to go with Jack. He was nutty over drag racing. I decided to learn all I could about drag racing so I could be part of his life. I spent hundreds of boring hours watching drag races. I met dozens of girls who were also bored, but they were there for the same reason — to please a boy friend. I went to one drag party after another and watched a bunch of creeps make fools of themselves. Finally I decided to stop knocking myself out for the jerk. Now I'm going with a fine fellow whose interests are more like mine — which is the way it ought to be. We enjoy music and art and hiking and just talking. When I think of the time and energy I wasted on the drag nut I could kick myself from here to China. — ASHAMED TO SIGN

DEAR ASHAMED: Rewarding relationships are based on what people can share. Similarity of interests is an ideal starting point. If a girl finds herself bored to death and faking enthusiasm for her boy friend's hobbies she'd better unload him or she could spend the rest of her life faking it — and this is the hardest work of all.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a big problem. He is my "little brother." Brother is about 40 pounds overweight and he eats enough to keep everybody in India alive. He steals my personal mail, takes money out of my purse, and Mom can't even keep change in the sugar bowl because of this thieving kid. He is in the slow class at school and still he is flunking. The teachers say he just sits there like a blob and doesn't even try to concentrate. Please don't tell me he needs love because all his life he has received so much attention that he is spoiled rotten. My parents dote on him and he manages to get his own way and win every argument. I have tried to tell Brother he'd better shape up or his life will be ruined. He says, "Take care of your own life and don't nag me."

What can I do? — WORRIED SWEET SIXTEEN

DEAR WORRIED SIXTEEN: The only thing you can do is urge your parents to see that Brother gets professional help. He is a goner unless somebody gets in there and fast. Overeating, stealing and flunking are all symptoms of your brother's illness.

Your letter indicates that you don't know the difference between love and letting a kid have his own way all the time. Caving in to a child's demands is not "love" it's the easy way to buy peace and quiet.

Confidential to: Undecided M.D.: Physician, heal thyself. You're sick, man. You might be able to pull off this neat maneuver but if your identity is ever discovered you'll be a corpse — professionally as well as socially.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with — but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You — For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

SCRUB FOR SOLOMON
ARUSHA, Tanzania (AP) — Solomon, a tame hyena which has been turned loose in Tanzania's Serengeti National Park, is missing his home comforts.

Dr. H. Kruuk, a Dutch expert who has been studying hyenas for nearly two years, hopes Solomon eventually will return to life in the wild.

But one night, while Kruuk was taking a bath, Solomon burst into the house. He, too, made straight for the bath. Kruuk leaped out as Solomon leaped in.

The homesick hyena got a good scrub and a good supper before being shown politely to the door.

Pastor Is Installed

In solemn ceremonies last Sunday, the Rev. Sigmund S. Decker became the pastor of the First Evangelical Lutheran Church in Ridgway. The Rev. Robert Olson, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church, Johnsonburg, and the dean of the Warren - McKean District of Western Pennsylvania - West Virginia Synod of the Lutheran Church in America, officiated.

The new pastor is a native of Warren, the son of Mr. Harry A. Decker of 407 Hickory street, and Mrs. Alma McLaughlin of 303 Pennsylvania ave., West. Pastor Decker graduated from Warren High School in 1947, worked for three years at United Refining Company, and served four years in the United States Air Force.

He entered Gettysburg College, then Gettysburg Seminary, graduating in June 1960 with a Bachelor of Divinity Degree. He was ordained that same month at the Annual convention of the Pittsburgh Synod. He took three months further training in Clinical Pastoral duties at Danville State Hospital and assumed his first pastoral duties in the Brookville Lutheran Parish, where he remained for six years. It was from Brookville that he came to First Lutheran in Ridgway, having his first service there on Sunday, January 22 of this year.

Pastor Decker is married to the former Carol Ann Nelson of Warren. They are the parents of four children: Linda 10, Judy 8, David 6 and Mark 4. Following the service on Sunday evening a reception was held for the Deckers in Fellowship Hall of the church.

Other clergymen who participated in the service were: the Rev. Warren Hollertz, pastor of Bethlehem Lutheran Church, Ridgway; the Rev. Paul Kroon, pastor of Emanuel Lutheran Church, Bradford; and the Rev. John F. Yedlicka, pastor of Maria Lutheran Church, Daguerre Mines. The Rev. Herbert G. Lindewurth Jr., pastor of Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church, McKees Rocks, and a close friend of Pastor Decker since seminary days, preached the sermon.

MAKING MORE, READING LESS
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The number of books borrowed from Johannesburg's City Library appears to be a reflection of the prosperity of its citizens.

City librarian Anna Smith claims that when people are prosperous, they read less and go out more. When money is scarce more books are borrowed for home reading.

Miss Smith said in her annual report Johannesburg's white population of about 385,000 read 3,785,720 library books last year — about 900,000 less than the year before.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Patrons of Paris Fashion Shows Dress for the Occasion

By GLORIA EMERSON

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
PARIS — George Hamilton, the actor and beau of Lynda Bird Johnson, is one of the very few Americans who arrived here last week but not because the French haute couture spring-summer collections were in full swing.

Hamilton, who wore a navy blazer with well-shined, small, undecorated gold buttons — was asked in the Relais-Plaza restaurant, where he was staying in Paris.

"At the Hilton," said the actor. "You see, I came with the Hiltons and they're at the Hilton."

What mattered most to two American buyers in the Relais-Plaza — the most fashionable place for people-watching at noon or at midnight in Paris — was not whether Hamilton would marry the President's daughter but who designed his blazer.

"Cardin," said the first buyer. "You bet," said the second buyer. But they were wrong. Hamilton wore a good Cardin copy.

It was the clothes on people's backs — and the clothes that were paraded before them — that provided all the important talk among most Americans here.

Some ladies went to extraordinary trouble to pull together a new wardrobe for the Paris shows. Mrs. Raymond Johnson had six new fur outfits, all made by Georges Laplan in New York.

At the parties in Paris this week, it helped to have an original Dior or Balenciaga to jump into — an old Lanvin long dress would always do, too.

The biggest shindig of all was held last night at the Plaza-Athenee hotel. Colonel Serge Obolensky, the well-known New York public relations man who left Russia in 1919 and has been making influential friends ever since — gave a reception for one of his clients, George Farkas, chairman of the board of Alexander's department store in New York. The store is trying to build up its reputation for making clever copies of Paris couture clothes and depends often, and heavily, on society types to do it.

Lots of pretty American women — now woven into French society because of their marriages — showed up in their $1,000 dresses for the sake of "darling Serge, who is such an old, old friend."

Two of them, both blonde and both beautiful were Princess

Society

Charles D'Arenberg, the former Mrs. Peggy Bedford Bancroft, who is now in the midst of her second divorce, and the Vicountess Paul de Rosiere, who during her Vassar days, was Harriette D'Arbenson — Moeller.

The grande dame of the evening who managed to make an entrance where others had tried and failed was Countess Edward Bismarck — the former Mrs. Harrison Williams — who wore a black Balenciaga with sleeves covered in very upright pink ostrich feathers.

Alexander's spent a lot of money getting to know people but Ohrbach's — the New York store that started the idea of copying French couture styles — wasn't the least bit worried. Irene Satz and Sydney Gittler, the Ohrbach's executives who cover the collections, ordered ten outfits from Yves Saint Laurent and loved Chanel, Ungaro and Lanvin's dresses with organdy bloomers underneath.

Chanel, who is furious at Saks Fifth Avenue for no longer wanting to copy her suits — loves them, too. Mademoiselle Chanel ordered her picture taken with Gittler and Miss Satz in her Salon on Rue Cambon. In the fashion world, that amounts to a Legion of Honor.

There were lots of actresses recruited for the opening days of different collections. It was one way of measuring the personality of the house. Jean Patou had Mireille Darc, one of the runners-up for Brigitte Bardot's niche, while Madame Gres invited Delphine Seyrig, the intellectual French actress who appeared in "Last Year at Marienbad," because Madame Gres is the shyest designer of any in Paris, she never poked her head out after the show to say hello to anyone.

Hints From Heloise

Decals for Boots

DEAR HELOISE

To make it easier for my kindergarten kiddie to identify her boots I put decals on them.

Not only does it make it easy for her to tell which boots are hers but it is fun for her to tell which boot goes on which foot since I put the decal on the outside of each boot.

Momma

DEAR HELOISE

When you have an extra long drape that needs pressing, place a sheet on your living room floor over a couple of blankets or quilts.

You can press your drapes on these without them getting all wrinkled.

Dolores Walsh

Use the edge of the sheet to square the drapes. That way you don't end up with rumpy, raggy curtains.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE

Even though commercial nylon brighteners do not say so on the package, did you know they could be used on cottons, too? I found this especially wonderful for my cotton pillow cases and bed sheets. I use these on my wash and bed sheets even in the wash cycle if the clothes are especially discolored. I wish.

I tried your experiment and it worked like a miracle.

It also improved the looks of some baby diapers we experimented with.

I have no idea why those directions do not on the package.

And ladies, watch your prices and ounces when making this purchase. Some brands give you much more for your money.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE

The suggestion about putting an inch or so of padding under the drapes is a good one. However, I improved on it.

So that the drapes would not split the wood I wrapped the base of the drapes in the wood and used smaller hooks. The color of the drapes looked like dresses up the line and looks pretty hanging in a closet.

Plan Autumn Wedding

DIANE RAE MADDOX
(Talcott Studio)

Mrs. Aliene Maddox of 187 Barrett avenue, announces the engagement of her youngest daughter, Diane Rae, to PFC Samuel Joseph Parinella, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Parinella of 209 Allen street, Jamestown.

Miss Maddox attended Jamestown High School and is now employed at the Hillside Nursing Home. Her fiancé is a 1962 graduate of Jamestown High School and attended Murray State College in Kentucky, and Kent University, Kent, Ohio. He is now serving with the United States Army, stationed in Vietnam.

A late fall wedding is being planned.

NO MUSH FOR MOPPETS

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Who said Valentines Day was for lovers? Moppets under 9 send more Valentines per capita than all the sweethearts in the world. But they ignore all the boy-girl business, unanimously choosing Mom as their first Valentine, according to a research test at Hallmark Cards. Teacher is second choice and a chum of the same sex gets the third.

It explains why those make-your-own Valentine kits are better sellers every year than the lacy sentiments of lovesick swains and suitors.

DO YOU LONG TO BE BEAUTIFUL?

OF COURSE YOU DO.

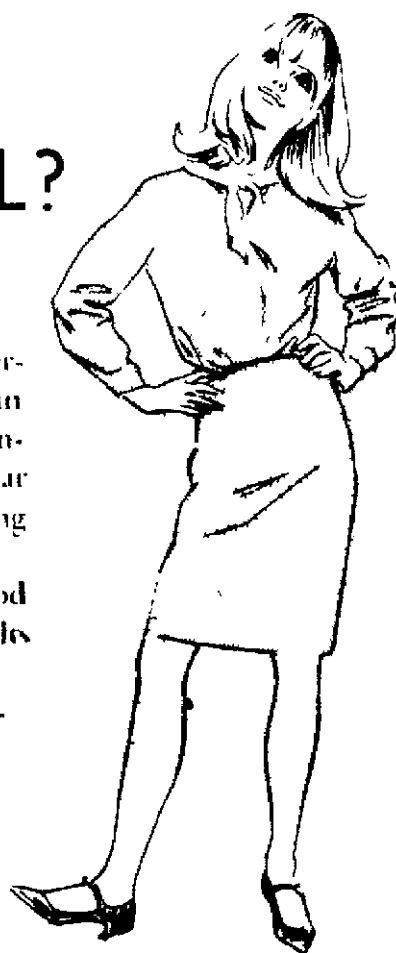

Well, it's not as difficult as you think. Not every girl has been blessed with perfect legs, a rosy complexion and a patrician nose. But YOU can attain beauty by learning to make the most of your particular assets. By learning to give nature a helping hand.

Let Emily Wilkens teach YOU good grooming, how to play down your faults and emphasize your potentials for beauty.

ARKIN UNDER ALIAS

NEW YORK (AP)—One of Off-Broadway's new hits afforded Alan Arkin, comedian, a chance at directing debut under an alias.

When the play, "Eh?", opened, the staging was credited to Roger Short. When investigation revealed no one of that name was a member of the directors' guild, Arkin acknowledged he used the pseudonym after being hurriedly summoned in replacement of two other directors.

OUCH OUT OF SHOTS
SANTA FE (AP) — A shot in the arm might not be so painful if there is a balloon in the other hand, the State Health Department figures.
So it is ordering 50,000 balloons to promote its vaccination program, to be used in conjunction with an immunization coloring book also being prepared.

BY Lenore McIntyre-TV Editor WEEK'S PREVIEW

Three network specials are scheduled for the coming week, two for NBC and one for CBS. The NBC entries will be an early Sunday evening program dealing with the artist Picasso and his works and a Danny Thomas special on Friday night. CBS airs another National Geographic Society program Tuesday night, titled "Alaska." The CBS schedule will be further varied, however, with the first offering in a children's movie series Sunday afternoon and the initial appearance of the Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour Sunday evening.

In addition to these programs, I would recommend on the basis of advance publicity the CBS Reports hour Tuesday night, dealing with the worldwide menace of air pollution.

For the sports-minded, there is the Bob Hope golf tournament on Saturday and Sunday afternoons, the St. John's Temple University basketball game Saturday afternoon and, for a bit of local flavor, WSEE will carry a Gannon College basketball game Monday night.

For those whose cable service includes reception of WPSX-TV, the educational TV channel, the week promises a varied schedule. Monday night there will be an interview with Dr. Edward Teller on the subject of the nuclear age.

One of the deans of American journalism, Arthur Krock, will be interviewed Wednesday night, followed by a report to consumers on the safety and performance of 1967 cars. A new series for parents starts Thursday night and is called "Preparing Your Child for Reading."

A new public affairs series makes its debut Friday night, titled "Great Decisions-1967." The first program is titled "Communist China and the U.S.: Are we on a Collision Course?" There are so many varied cultural programs on WPSX-TV that your TV editor suggests you consult the schedule in today's TV section and follow it for an abundance of offerings that include poetry, literature, drama, and music.

SERVICE EXPANDED

The Warren TV Corp. has expanded its reception to cover every point on the dial for those fortunate enough to be on this cable. You will find your favorite stations as follows: Ch. 2, WGR; Ch. 3, WPSX-TV; Ch. 4, WBN; Ch. 6, WFBC; Ch. 7, WKBW; Ch. 8, WSEE; Ch. 11, CHCH; Ch. 12, WICU; Ch. 13, WRRN-FM.

You'll notice that this leaves three vacant channels, 5, 9, and 10. These will be used for microwave reception of three New York independent stations, WOR-TV on Ch. 5 and WNEW-TV on Ch. 9. WPIX-TV (not to be confused with our educational channel WPSX) is on Ch. 10 but in the wee hours of the morning may switch to Ch. 2 for Very Late Late movies.

At this time it is economically unfeasible to expect the smaller cable operations throughout the county to try to match the scope of the big Warren TV cable service. Most of them are quite adequate and carry at least one channel for each of the three major American networks, ABC, NBC, and CBS.

They have one glaring deficiency, however, and that is the lack of educational television reception. Until this is rectified, (technically and financially), it is not a great problem) cable customers are being denied quality programming in the areas of education, information, culture, and entertainment which cannot be found in commercial network fare. Urge your cable operator to add WPSX-TV, Ch. 3: +

PUBLIC TV

The face of television may change drastically in the next five years, certainly within the next decade. You can expect to see some far-reaching legislation at both state and federal levels to authorize and partially finance a public television system, which in essence will be an expansion of the present Educational Television Network.

All this will be the result of the recommendations of the Carnegie Commission on Educational Television, which on the whole have evoked favorable reaction in most quarters. With 14 stations on the air now, the goal of the Commission report is 380 by 1980. Construction and equipment of stations and improvements to existing stations would be financed by federal appropriations through the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare.

Programming would be financed largely by a 2 per cent to 5 per cent manufacturers' excise tax on TV sets, augmented by state and local funds and grants from foundations and other private sources.

A Corporation for Public Television would be formed, non-profit and nongovernmental, to implement operations and programming. Under the Commission's proposal, Public Television would provide and cover "all that is of human interest and importance which is not at the moment appropriate or available for support by advertising, and which is not arranged for formal instruction."

You'll be hearing more, much more, about the expansion of ETV in the weeks and months ahead.

TMO SCHEDULE FORMAT CHANGE

A glance at your television schedule this morning may bring you back for a second look. Gone are your familiar station call letters and in their place you will find station channel numbers.

This may be confusing for many viewers who, for years, have been accustomed to identifying their stations by letters. Now, you'll have to translate the call letters to station channels which will not always correspond to the channel on your dial when you receive it.

For instance, WICU, which is Channel 12 out of Erie, will now be listed simply as 12. Changes are always troublesome at first but we trust you will adjust and accommodate yourself to the new format very quickly.

LASSIE DOES
HER LITTER BIT

NEW YORK (AP) — Litter turns out to be a headache for a raccoon featured on an upcoming episode of the Lassie TV series.

In the show, Lassie takes on the role of anti-litter crusader following the lead of her forest ranger master who has built a Keep America Beautiful display at the entrance to the forest.

Next Wednesday is "Ash Wednesday". This day marks the beginning of the 40 day period known as Lent, the most important period in the year for the Christian Church.

What is Lent? What significance does it have in our lives? For different people it has various meanings. It is a favorite season for some church members, because it offers them another opportunity for "playing at religion", only in a more self-satisfying way than usual. It has its special appeal in the fact that it calls for self-sacrifice, which can help us feel noble, and offers ways of giving up a few things without the necessity of really becoming totally involved in a deep, personal way. For some it means giving up "cigarettes and whiskey and wild, wild women"; for others it's cutting back on sweets and meats and other eats; while still others really go all out and stop lying and backbiting and even gossiping — just for the period of Lent, of course. How very virtuous and "spiritual" this can make us feel. How wonderful! How false!

The Old Testament prophet Isaiah had some things to say about "fasting", as we read in chapter 58 of his book. So also did Robert Herrick in his poem, "To Keep a True Lent":

Is this a Fast, to keep
The larder lean,
And clean
From fat of veals and sheep?

Lent

Is it to quit the dish
Of flesh, yet still
To fill
The platter high with fish?

Is it to fast an hour,
Or ragged to go,
Or show
A downcast look and sour?

No: 'tis a Fast to dole
Thy sheaf of wheat
And meat,
Unto the hungry soul.

It is to fast from strife,
From old debate
And hate;
To circumsise thy life.

Rev. Franklin Hagberg

To show a heart grief-rent;
To starve thy sin,
Not bin;
And that's to keep thy Lent.

For the honest seeker after God Lent is something else. Lent reminds me of Sin: not the sins of mankind — not my neighbor's sins — not even the sins of my wife — but my own sin. It is a time for me to inspect my life: not in a way that is pleasing to me — not to go to God and ask Him to agree with me that I'm not such a bad guy after all — not to remind myself of all the good points in my favor — but a time to inspect my life in the light of the Cross. For Lent is a forty day journey to Calvary. And Calvary is a reminder of Sin — my Sin.

But this is not all that Lent is for: it also tells us of One who deals with the fact of Sin. It speaks to us of Love — the wonderful love of a God who while He hates Sin has mercy and love for the Sinner. That's me. And you. And so as we are fearfully inspecting our lives, dreading to look deeply lest we see how sinful we really are, we are conscious of the loving-kindness and tender-mercy of the One who dealt with the penalty and power of Sin so long ago — Jesus Christ.

So Lent takes us to Him who ought to be at the center of our lives all the time, the Son of God. Of Him John wrote, "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." I John 1:9
This is Lent. What will it mean to you?

See Bright Outlook for Area For '67, Penelec Reviews Year

Pennsylvania Electric Company's results and operations in 1966 reflected the generally excellent economic conditions of the Warren and Bradford areas and the utility forecasts a continuation of the high level of economic activity in 1967, according to David R. Smith, Jr., Penelec's Northern Division Manager.

Mr. Smith said the Division, which includes all or parts of Warren, Venango, Clarion, Forest, McKean, Potter, Tioga, Bradford, Sullivan, Wyoming, Susquehanna, and Wayne Counties, recorded sizable gains in residential, commercial and industrial electric power consumption for the year.

Consumption for residential use in the Division was 7.4 per cent over the previous year. It was up 12.3 per cent for commercial customers and 13.1 per cent for industrial use.

"Revenues, too, were up for this Division, although not in the same proportion as sales because of the promotional nature of the Company's rates and because of rate reductions initiated by the Company in 1966," Mr. Smith said.

The reductions, the latest in a series affecting all classes of customers, provided rate cuts for large industrial customers, electric home heating customers, private outdoor lighting customers and municipal mercury vapor street lighting.

In connection with the rate reduction for electric heating customers, he said that the number of electrically heated dwellings, included new homes, conversions in older homes, apartments and mobile homes, increased by about 21 per cent over 1965 for the Division. As of the end of the year, there were more than 6,100 total electric homes served by Penelec, with 1,573 new homes and conversions from other sources of energy added in 1966 alone.

The Company made substantial investments in the Northern Division during 1966.

Work began on the $40 million Seneca Hydroelectric Generating Station, being built by Penelec and Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company at the base of the Kinzua Dam near Warren. The station, which is scheduled to be put into operation in 1969, will have an output of 380,000 kilowatts.

A new $145,000 total electric District Headquarters and Service Center serving Canton, Troy and surrounding areas, was completed and occupied in June, and another serving the Knox District was completed at a cost of $105,000 and was occupied in September.

Among the other significant construction items during the year was completion of a new high voltage transmission line from North Meshepp to Mehoopany to meet an expanding industrial demand; progress on a new North Meshepp Substation, one of the largest in the Penelec System; and expansion and reinforcement of electric service to area customers.

Although the Company's 1967 construction program will not be announced for several weeks, Mr. Smith predicted that it will probably come close to the record 1966 outlay of $57 million. He said substantial sums will be spent in the Northern Division, with special emphasis on expanding and reinforcing its electric distribution system to meet expanding customer demands and to serve new customers.

During the year Penelec began its Experimental Underground Distribution program. Under the program, electric lines to new homes and new residential sections are installed underground at no added cost to customers.

Penelec, through its System Economic Emphasis Department (SEED) and the research and recommendations of the Central Economic Development Organization (CEDO) of Washington, D.C., whose services Penelec retained, conducted seminars in May and June for area officials and civic leaders. The 14 seminars, including those in Oil City, Warren, Towanda and Galeton of the Northern Division, were conducted throughout the utility's 33-county service area to identify problem areas and opportunities that community leaders could pursue to bolster the future economic health of the areas.

The Company also launched an Evergreen Tree Seeding program during the year to help community and civic groups beautify their areas by planting the seedlings in locations where they would, when fully grown, screen such unsightly areas as automobile graveyards, mining operations, burned out forests and soil erosion. Penelec furnished the seedlings and advice from its Forestry Department.

"Fun on the Range," Penelec's cooking instruction classes for girls aged 8 to 12, was conducted last summer for more than 9,500 girls in 125 communities. The program began in 1949 in Towanda with an initial class of 30 students. Penelec also sponsored its largest delegation to the National Youth Conference on the Atom last year with eight students and eight teachers attending the three-day event in Chicago.

Mr. Smith cited progress during 1966 which indicates a healthy industrial climate in the Warren and Bradford areas. The following companies either completed or substantially finished new buildings in the Warren area in 1966: Veterans Block Company of Starbrick; Wyoming Sand and Stone Company of Rogerstown; National Forge Company of Irvine; Sylvania Electric Products Company's 109,000-square-foot Engineering and Research Center, Deluxe Metal Products Corporation and Northwest Savings and Loan Association, all of Warren; and Warren State Hospital of North Warren.

In the Bradford area, the Pierce Glass Company completed a plant addition; Smeltport Specialty Company completed a new building; Zippo Manufacturing Company completed a 20,000-square-foot addition; Speer Carbon Company completed one addition and is nearing completion on a second addition; the 60-unit electrically heated DeSoto Motel was opened; a 20,000-square-foot Clark Discount Store was completed and opened; and work began on a 120-unit electrically heated Holiday Inn.

Unemployment in both areas dropped in 1966, from 1.9 to 1.8 per cent in Bradford and from 2.4 to 1.8 per cent in Warren.

Mr. Smith predicted, "We have every reason to believe 1967 can be just as healthy economically for the area as 1966 was, and we at Penelec are committed to meeting the challenge of growth, both with adequate supplies of low cost electricity and through our support of programs that will help assure the future attractiveness of the area."

U.S. Bureau Shoulders 1-90 Blame

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Pennsylvania congressman says the Bureau of Public Roads has shouldered some of blame for conditions that caused deterioration of parts of the Erie Thruway.

Rep. Joseph P. Vigorito, Democrat, said Thursday the bureau has accepted responsibility for poor design and insufficient inspection.

The thruway, part of Interstate 90, "has been plagued by crumbling pavement and bridge structures," said Vigorito.

The lawmaker said he received a letter from F.C. Turner, acting federal highway administrator, saying the thruway's "basic designs and construction contracts were not in fact fully suitable, and the completed work is not providing the performance which was intended."

Vigorito said part of the trouble stemmed from the bureau's acceptance of outdated plans and specifications and in failure to anticipate the type of traffic the thruway would be carrying.

He added, "Now that the prime investigation has been completed all that remains to be done is for the state to take the necessary corrective action so as to adequately reconstruct and maintain the thruway."

from the Red House Dam project but needed elsewhere. Re-appropriation of about $20,000 to be applied on construction of the new store and laundry on Park Rt. 1, opposite the entrance to the Red House trailer camp is also sought.

Kukuck Joins Championship Stock Judging

CORRY — "From 1963 through 1966, our livestock judging team representing the Pennsylvania State University traveled about 20,000 miles to participate in various contests throughout the United States," said Edward Kukuck, Corry Area High School student teacher in agriculture.

The Apollo, Pa., native holds a bachelor of science degree in animal industry from Penn State and is currently working on his master's degree.

In late November, the Penn State judging team, with Kukuck as a member, scored a first in university history by winning the team judging championship at the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago, Ill.

"There were 34 judging teams entered in the Chicago exposition, made up of five members each," Kukuck said, "and we were to judge beef cattle, swine, sheep and horses."

Father Downing, who has been in ill health for some time, will be succeeded by Rev. Robert J. Reilly, present pastor of St. Bernard's Church, Falls Creek, as administrator.

The Rev. John L. Murray, who continues as headmaster of Central Christian High School, DuBois, will also become administrator of St. Bernard, Falls Creek.

The Rev. John Blessey, present assistant at St. Michael, Erie, becomes chaplain of San Rosario Hospital, Cambridge Springs. Rev. John G. DeSanti, present assistant at Blessed Sacrament, Erie, will be chaplain in service at Hamot Hospital, with residence at Gannon College.

Rev. Thomas J. Miller, now in residence at Erie's St. John, becomes a resident of St. Michael, Erie.

$765,000 Sought For Allegany Park

ALLEGANY STATE PARK — Gov. Rockefeller's $4.7 billion state budget, sent to the Legislature Wednesday includes new appropriations of $765,000 for continuing development of Quaker Recreation Area in Allegany State Park and an allocation for work at the new Long Point State Park on Chautauque Lake.

Both these projects are administered by the Allegany State Park Commission.

In addition to these new appropriations, an Allegany State Park spokesman said, re-appropriation of funds previously made available but as yet unspent is being sought.

Among these proposed re-appropriations, he said, are about $155,000 for continuation of a project for clearing and demolition of buildings in and near area of the 400-acre Quaker Lake created by a dam on Quaker Run and for relocation of Cain Hollow Rd. in that vicinity. This is a part of the Quaker Recreation Area project for which $765,000 in new funds is sought.

Another requested re-appropriation is for $24,765, left from the Red House Dam project but needed elsewhere.

Re-appropriation of about $20,000 to be applied on construction of the new store and laundry on Park Rt. 1, opposite the entrance to the Red House trailer camp is also sought.

Drum Corps Merger In 73-Man Outfit

Another merger of drum corps finds the former Warren Cornplanter in a consolidation which will include five outfits.

The combination, a 73-man group, will be known as "Interstate Ambassadors," and will make its first appearance at Batavia, N.Y., this evening in a standstill concert program.

The Salamanca Republican Press reports the new Ambassadors include members from the Cornplanter Black Knights, organized a year ago when Salamanca Black Knights and Warren Cornplanter combined, former Jamestown Vikings, Murray, Pa. Drum Corps, and the Batavia Blue Devils, and again Ambassadors, and continues as follows:

The program at Batavia is to be staged by four senior drum corps led by the Hawthorne Cavaliers of Hawthorne, N.J., who won the national title in 1966. It is to be presented on the stage at Batavia Area High School.

The 8 p.m. concert already is a sellout and no tickets are available.

Interstate Ambassadors have forty-three buglers, twelve drummers and an 18-man color guard according to Dan Walker, business manager. Mr. Walker works here, but now resides in Limestone.

William Yonkers of Salamanca is director of the new corps, Richard Jones of Salamanca is captain of the color guard and Tyler Heron of Jimerson town is secretary.

Other officers recently elected are Buckley Beck of Jamestown, finance officer; William Blanks of Warren, Pa., publicity director; Dan Forsberg of Jamestown, bugle sergeant, and Gerald Garwood of Wellsville, drum sergeant.

Ambassadors have all-new uniforms in a red, white and blue color scheme. They have been rehearsing at Seneca Elementary School here and in Haley Community Building at Jimerson town.

With the annual drum corps season approaching, the outfit is scheduled to begin practice for field drill and marching within a week. Victor Jonas of Fredonia is drill instructor. He also instructed Cornplanter Black Knights.

ing Thursday when he showed up at the old homestead—the Walters' farm, a trip of 60 miles!

Since his collar bore a nameplate and a phone number, it appears the journeyman foxhound had no contact with a human being during the long trek.
